Protecting Sustainable Societies

Prof Dr Peter Maas

Conference Moderation

Member of the Executive Board,
Institute of Insurance Economics,
University of St. Gallen (HSG)

The foundations of society and economy have been shaken in the last two years by the corona virus and by the current Ukraine War. Both has changed the values of our human habitat and society – these will be decisive for future economic success and especially as well as the insurance industry.

The demand for sustainability, new emerging risks, as well as the acceleration of the digital economy, are challenging traditional insurance business models.

The key success factors for the future are the redefinition of insurance business in a more connected world and the adaptation of consumer driven business models. The strengths of today's insurance system must be collaboratively networked with eco-systems and the use of new technologies.

Digital business transformation leadership is more in demand than ever in the insurance industry. New strategies and the further improvement of products and services to maintain attractive margins are essential and the winners will be those who actively engage in the business transformation with open innovation and using the «Networked Economy» of the future. But what exactly is digital and what needs to be transformed?

The conference will provide you with answers and impulses for the challenges in your companies and will once again address and discuss fundamental issues at the highest level. The participants are Senior Executives who have been personally invited.

InsuranceCom AT-CEE – the platform where Senior decision-makers of the Austrian and Central & Eastern European Insurance industry meet and exchange their experiences.
