Fit into A New Future Insurance Industry

Prof Dr Peter Maas
Conference Moderation
Member of the Executive Board,
Insurance Institute University
St. Gallen, Switzerland

The global forecast for 2019 still shows robust growth for the European insurance industry, but with a weakening dynamic.

Insurers are continuing to concentrate on turnover growth, profitability, overcoming technological challenges, and competition in a dynamic sector.

Technological innovations, higher customer expectations and an increased dynamic among disruptive newcomers, who are redefining the market in some areas, are also leading to far-reaching changes and necessary transformation among established insurance companies.

The change processes that are increasingly initiated technologically in Asia are often more advanced than in Europe. Therefore it is certainly worthwhile to take a closer look at some of these developments and learn from these markets. Once again this year, we have invited recognised Asia experts to take part in our dialogue at the InsuranceCom Central Europe 2019.

The upcoming InsuranceCom Conference 2019 will once again address and discuss fundamental questions at the highest level. The participants are senior executives of the German-speaking insurance industry, who have been invited personally.

InsuranceCom Zurich – the platform where Senior decision-makers of the Central European Insurance industry meet and exchange their experiences.
